How did the Fund perform during the reporting period?

U.S. stocks rose over the year ending August 31, 2024, primarily due to strong performance from large tech and AI companies. Anticipation of upcoming interest rate cuts by the Fed led to fluctuating investor sentiment around each Fed meeting.

Amid this situation, volatility (measured by the VIX) increased, leading to sharp market swings in October 2023, April 2024, and August 2024. Surprises in inflation or setbacks in easing expectations caused stock declines, which helped the Fund to achieve better-than-expected risk-adjusted returns.

Notably, since the Fund's equity exposure comes from an S&P 500 Index ETF rather than from selecting individual stocks, the recent performance benefits of the index's market cap weighting positively impacted the Fund.

The repeated spikes in volatility presented us with attractive opportunities to profit from the put spreads we held on a systematic basis and also kept the premium levels of the sold calls elevated, which enhanced the Fund's performance more than expected, even in a strong market year.

The Fund’s 69% participation rate (vs the S&P 500 TR) over the previous 12 months was slightly higher than expected but was achieved with 46% of the market volatility. The results were in line with our expectations, and there have been no notable changes in our investment or trading strategy over the past year.

The Fund has adopted the performance of the James Alpha Managed Risk Domestic Equity Portfolio, a series of The Saratoga Advantage Trust (the “Predecessor Portfolio”) as the result of a reorganization of the Predecessor Portfolio into the Fund, which was consummated after the close of business on March 19, 2021 (the “Reorganization”). Prior to the Reorganization, the Fund had not yet commenced operations. The returns shown for periods ending on or prior to March 19, 2021 are those of the Class A shares of the Predecessor Portfolio. Class A shares' returns of the Fund will be different from the returns of the Predecessor Portfolio's Class A shares as they have different expenses.
